HISTORICAL NOTE

While the construction of a student union first popped up as early as 1939, the LSU Union did not receive widespread support until 1955, and it wasn't until 1958 that the Board of Supervisors authorized the project. Local architect John Desmond, well-known union consultant Porter Butts, and Carl Maddox, the first director of the union, worked together to design the building. The building was funded by a $1.7 million allocation from the Board of Supervisors and a student fee of $10. The first Governing Board was chosen in 1962; comprised of students and faculty, their charge was to create the first constitution and a set of bylaws for the new union. Construction began in 1962, and the Union was officially opened in January 1964.

Like other college unions of the time, the LSU Union was conceived as "the university's living room," a central hub where students could spend their leisure time in a variety of pursuits. The LSU Union originally featured, among other things, study rooms and a browsing library, a cafeteria and snack bar, a barbershop, separate men's and women's quiet rest areas, a bowling alley, a music listening room, and a bookstore.

As the needs of students changed through the years, the Union's offerings were modified to meet their needs: the building was expanded in 1987, which gave the bookstore a badly needed second floor. The space that had originally held the cafeteria and snack bar became a food court in the 1990s. Extensive renovations began again in 2006, including a major renovation of the theater and a four-story addition on the southeast side of the building.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection contains topical files pertaining to the LSU Union, comprising reports, photographs, correspondence, and printed materials. Printed materials include newspaper articles about developments in student life in the 1960s through the 1980s, including the early years of Free Speech Alley and campus and community correspondence regarding the controversial showing of the film Hail Mary. Correspondence includes letters and memorandums between university administrators and union personnel regarding budgets, policy creation, and program administration. Intra-union correspondence includes documentation of patron complaints, employment issues, and budgetary concerns. Photographs include prints from Peter Soderbergh's pictorial history of the Union (Bright Journey, 1993) and pictures of the Union taken by the planning consultant. Reports include documents regarding the Union's construction and layout of the floor plan. Also included are dishes from the Union's cafeteria featuring the 1964 logo.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series I. Topical Files, 1955-2008

This series is organized alphabetically by folder title. Records include correspondence, memorandums, newspaper articles, reports, and meeting minutes relating to the construction and daily operations of the LSU Union.

Series II. Photographs, 1966-1983

This series contains photographs of the LSU Student Union upon its completion in 1964, photos of students using Union services ca. 1960s-1980s, and photos of Union programs.

Series III. Printed Materials, 1964

This series contains Union brochures and publications and printed inaugural event invitations, dated 1964. Also included are photocopies of the Jan 8, 1964, issue of The Reveille detailing the ribbon cutting event for the Union's official opening. The Student Union installment of the LSU Poster Collection includes printed event posters for the Union Art Gallery and the Union Theatre.

Series IV. Realia, circa 1960-1998

This series contains one dinner plate, two salad plates, one saucer, one bowl, and four demitasses from the Union cafeteria, circa the 1960s; a ribbon with the phrase "Bag the Birds"; a card for "Maul Paul"; and button with the phrase "Use Condom Sense."
