BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Max Rosenbaum was born in New York in 1887 and later moved with his family to Selma, Alabama. After serving in World War I, he traveled around visiting friends from the Army. Upon reaching Bogalusa, he obtained a job with Elias and Meyer Berenson in their clothing business. In 1923, Rosenbaum married Ruth Elgutter, the daughter of a prominent Jewish family that emigrated from Germany to Newellton, Louisiana, near Natchez, and then to Baton Rouge. He then went to work at his father-in-law’s business located on Third Street, the Guarantee Shoe Store. Two years later, the couple’s only son, Bert Rosenbaum, was born. Max Rosenbaum continued to work in the family business for many years, traveling to nearby states in order to purchase shoes to stock for the store. He died in 1966.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Letters and photographs ranging from 1898 to 1945 relate to the Rosenbaum family. Photocopies of typed letters written from Max Rosenbaum to his son Bert, who was serving in the Army, constitute almost a daily record of the Baton Rouge home front during World War II. Photographs consist of mounted paper prints and black and white prints primarily of the Elgutter family.
SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

I. Letters, 1944-1945 (63 items)

Letters detail the activities of family and friends including members of the local Jewish population and other men from Baton Rouge serving in the military. Insight as to the economic condition of Southern Louisiana during the war as well as the social history and culture of the area are also evident. In addition, these letters document Max Rosenbaum’s own memories of being stationed in France during World War I, “soldierly” advice given by father to son, and the family and community’s support of local soldiers. Several letters also document dissension within the local congregation, B’nai Israel, over the formation of the State of Israel.

Letters 42 and 43 not accessioned with collection.

II. Photographs, 1898-1929, undated (29 items)

Photographs are primarily mounted paper prints of the Elgutter family. In addition to the photographs of Ruth (Elgutter) Rosenbaum as a child and young woman, there is also a family portrait as well as pictures of Ruth with her brother, Sammy. Many of the studio portraits were taken at Henry C. Norman’s studio in Natchez before the family moved to Baton Rouge. Among the black and white prints included are photographs of Bert Rosenbaum as a child.
