BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

The Wright family and their relatives were notable for their management of plantations in Louisiana, their contributions to education and their military service during the Civil War. The Wright family owned property in St. Mary, Rapides, Avoyelles and St. Landry Parishes in Louisiana and undeveloped lands in Louisiana and five counties of Texas. Originally, the family of Jesse and Sarah Wright lived at North Bend Plantation, Rapides Parish, but after Jesse Wright's death, his wife and younger children moved to Greenwood Plantation, Rapides Parish, which Sarah Wright purchased from her son-in-law, Leroy Harvard. After the Civil War, family members remaining at Greenwood (Sarah Wright, Mary Wright and, later, Sarah's sister, Ann Foland) divided their time between this plantation and the homes of Esther Wright Boyd in Baton Rouge, La. and Auburn, Ala.

Jesse D. Wright was born in Saybrook, Conn., May 15, 1793, and died in Cheneyville, La., March 25, 1850. He completed his medical studies at Yale University in 1814, and became a practicing physician in Rapides Parish, La. He also managed several business concerns, including a store and plantations, and was active in civic and church affairs. He was the administrator of the estate of one of his business associates, David Cheney, whose son, Oscar (called "cousin Oscar") married Wright's daughter, Ellen. Jesse Wright was apparently instrumental in setting up the Spring Creek Academy in Pineville, in the summer home of planters from Rapides, to educate local children. He married Sarah Robert (Grimball) Wright in 1821.

Sarah Robert Wright (nee Grimball) was born in South Carolina in 1805 and died in Rapides Parish, La., in 1881. She managed the family property and businesses after her husband's death. Due to Sarah Wright's impaired health, management of the Wright property after about 1870 was carried out by her daughter, Mary Cornelia Wright. After 1870, Greenwood was rented to several lessees, including two of Sarah Wright's grandsons, George Stafford and A.D. Harvard. The portion of Greenwood remaining in the Wright family passed, after the death of Mary Wright, to Esther Wright Boyd, who sold it about 1893.

Six of the eleven children of Jesse and Sarah Wright survived into early adulthood. Sarah Catherine, known as "Catherine" (1826-96), married General Leroy A. Stafford (1822-64) in 1843. Stafford commanded the Stafford Guards during the Civil War, and was fatally wounded at the Battle of the Wilderness, Va. Julia Caroline (1828-98), married Leroy S. Harvard (1828-95) in 1848. Harvard became a successful businessman in St. Landry Parish, La. Ellen Judith (1837-64), married Oscar Bailey Cheney (1830-1905) on June 26, 1856. Their home was originally Riverside Plantation, but during the Civil War they moved into Greenwood, which Oscar managed for Sarah Wright. Mary Cornelia (1839-88) remained unmarried and lived with her mother on Greenwood Plantation and later with the family of Esther Wright Boyd. David Paul Augustus Wright, known as "Augustus" (1842-57), died of typhoid fever while at school in Kentucky. Esther Gertrude (1844-1915) married (1865) David French Boyd (1834-99), who spent much of his teaching career at Louisiana State Seminary, later Louisiana State University in Pineville, where he was Superintendent and President.
