Biographical/Historical Note

Ezekiel John (d.1889), Thomas Cargill Warner (d.1918), and Stephen Dudley Ellis were sons of Tabitha Warner and Ezekiel Parke Ellis, a judge and state legislator from Amite, Louisiana. E. John, Thomas C. W., and Stephen were practicing attorneys who were active in Louisiana politics. Their sisters included Nancy, Mary Elizabeth, and Emily.

In the 1850s, Thomas and John attended Centenary College in Jackson, La., and later the University of Louisiana Law School. During the Civil War, E. John served as captain in the St. Helena Rebels, Co. F, 16th Louisiana Infantry. He was captured at Missionary Ridge in 1863 and imprisoned at Johnson's Island, Sandusky, Ohio. Stephen enlisted in the Confederate Army in 1862, as did Thomas C.W., who served as captain in the 18th Battalion, Louisiana Cavalry. Thomas was married to Martena V. Hamilton, and after the war was elected to the Louisiana State Senate and served until 1868.

E. John Ellis entered into law practice and married Josephine Chamberlain in 1867. In 1874 he was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives and served until 1885. The following year he and Thomas C.W. Ellis formed a law partnership with John McEnery, practicing in New Orleans. E. John Ellis later practiced law in Washington. Thomas was appointed Judge of the Civil District Court of New Orleans in 1888, and in 1898 Judge Ellis was elected to the chair of Admiralty and International Law at Tulane University in New Orleans.

Scope and Content Note

Papers consist of correspondence, legal documents, Louisiana pamphlets, printed items, and business papers of three generations of the Ezekiel Parke Ellis family of southeastern Louisiana. The letters of Ezekiel Parke Ellis to his wife constitute the early part of the collection. The bulk of the collection consists of correspondence, notes, and documents of Ezekiel John Ellis, Thomas Cargill Warner Ellis and their brother, Stephen Dudley Ellis.

Politics occupy a large portion of the discussions in the correspondence and speeches of 1856-1861. There are also broadsides advertising political meetings in which Thomas and John participated. Civil War correspondence of E. John Ellis includes letters written from various camps in Louisiana, Mississippi and Georgia, as well as those from the prison camp at Johnson's Island, Ohio.

Correspondence of the Reconstruction period pertains to politics, reflecting the struggle to reorganize the Democratic Party, conflicts in state government and attempts to maintain white supremacy in the west Florida parishes. There is also the correspondence of E. John Ellis while he served in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In the 1880s, the children of E. John, Stephen, and especially those of Thomas are the authors of a majority of the papers, Sallie, Ollie, and John being the prominent figures. The correspondence tends to concern education of children, marriage, and their homes and travel.

Later papers include legal documents, memoranda and business notes of the law practice. Robert S. Ellis, son of Thomas, was elected Judge of the 25th Judicial District Court in 1907, while Stephen was a judge of the Court of Appeals from 1907 until his retirement in 1924. Papers after the death of Thomas C.W. Ellis in 1918 are primarily those of Robert S., Stephen, and their children.

Bound volumes consist of account books, notebooks, journals, diaries and scrapbooks of various family members. Among the printed items are newspaper clippings, recipes, election tickets, and several unidentified photographs, cartes-de-visite, cabinet cards, tintypes, and albumen prints.
