Biographical/Historical Note

Thomas Railey Markham was a Presbyterian minister in New Orleans who joined the Confederate Army and served as a chaplain in two regiments. Born in Fayette, Mississippi, in 1828 to William F. and Susan Railey Markham, he spent his childhood in Vicksburg. In 1850, Markham entered Princeton Theological Seminary, where he graduated as a Presbyterian minister. In 1856, Markham became the pastor of Lafayette Presbyterian Church in New Orleans and married Mary E. Searles in 1858. Between 1862 and 1864, he enlisted in the Confederate Army, serving as a chaplain until the end of the Civil War. After the war, Markham returned to Lafayette Presbyterian Church and continued his activities as minister until 1894. The Hodgson family were prominent and involved members of his congregation.

Scope and Content Note

The bulk of the collection deals with Markham's activities as a minister of the Presbyterian Church, both as a chaplain during the Civil War and as pastor of Lafayette Presbyterian Church in New Orleans. Materials include volumes containing sermons and lecture notes taken at Princeton Theological Seminary; two memorandum books (1859, 1865) containing the names of parishioners of the Fulton Street Presbyterian Church, New Orleans; and (43) memorandum books (1877-1892) giving a day-by-day account of Markham's social and church activities. Some personal papers are also present.

The Civil War material, consisting of correspondence, military orders, certificates of authorization and other papers, is chiefly concerned with Markham's activities as a chaplain attached to General W. S. Featherson's Brigade. The letters, written by various members of the Markham and related families, tell in detail of skirmishes and naval operations at Vicksburg, mentioning the arrival of the sloop-of-war Arkansas; army operations around Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tennessee (1862); a review of the army before President Jefferson Davis and Generals Bragg and Polk near Murfreesboro, Tennessee, and a description of the battle (1863); convalescent camps near Atlanta, Georgia (1864); and visits to the hospitals in Mississippi and Georgia (1864). Among these papers are lists and related statistics prepared by Markham giving the names of soldiers from Mississippi regiments and their respective church denominations; and a circular letter (1862) from Major J. L. Power, superintendent of Army Records, State of Mississippi stating the information required to prepare a military record of every officer and private from Mississippi serving in army commands of the Confederacy.

The manuscript and printed material for the 1870s and 1880s give information relative to the origin and development of the Presbyterian parochial schools in New Orleans, and contain a few items pertaining to the activities of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church.

The collection also contains papers of the Hodgson family, members of Markham's congregation, including a list of books in the Thomas R. Markham Memorial Library, Lafayette Markham's personal papers include a fragment of a letter addressed to him at Oakland College, Claiborne County, Miss. (1847), a letter from Thomas R. Markham in Marshfield, Mass. to his father in Vicksburg discussing his visit to the grave and home of Daniel Webster (September 1, 1853), and a letter from a congregant expressing his pleasure in having Markham back in Vicksburg and looking forward to his sermons (December 24, 1855). The marriage license of Thomas R. Markham and Mary E. Searles is included (1858). Other papers include a deed of sale of a slave by William F. and Susan R. Markham to Thomas R. Markham and wife (1860), and a receipt for a subscription to Southern Presbyterian Review (1861).

Civil War papers include a certificate from Headquarters Protection Rifles, Company F, Confederate Battalion certifying Markham to be an active member (October 1861), a pass into Camp Lewis headquarters (September 1861), and a voting registration certificate from the city of New Orleans (October 21, 1861). A letter from Col. William T. Withers recommends Markham as chaplain (August 1862) and a warrant from the Provost Marshal's Office, Vicksburg, calls for punishment if Markham's property is molested (1863). Letters from Rev. Markham to his wife discuss friends, family, and events of the war. He tells of naval battles, the shelling of Vicksburg from Union ships, evacuation of homes, and the resulting destruction and death in the city (May-July 1862). A letter to Thomas from his brother Will sends condolences for the death of his son, tells what his own regiment has been doing, and asks for news from Vicksburg (July 1862), and letters to his mother tell of his regiment's march through the Cumberland Gap (October 22, 1862), the Battle of Murfreesboro (January 8, 1863 and undated), and various cases he has seen while working in the hospital (September 1864-February 1865). Also included are lists, such as members of the Protestant church in the 3rd Mississippi Regiment (August 22, 1864) and additions to church membership in Featherston's Brigade (August 1864). Undated loose diary entries discuss life in the camps and fellow soldiers. A certificate states that Rev. Markham has been commissioned to serve as a missionary in the Confederate States Army in General Featherston's Brigade (January 1, 1865) and property orders from the Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen and Abandoned Lands issued to Mrs. Susan R. Markham restore property in Warren County (October 12, 1865).

Post-Civil War papers discuss the Presbyterian Church in New Orleans and the state of parochial schools. For example, a number of letters from Markham to W.C. Raymond (July 1870) and J.W. Beardslee (June 1876) discuss these issues, as well as those of Sunday school and members of the congregation. A letter from W. S. Featherston in Holly Springs, thanks Markham for his condolences after the death of Featherston's wife and two children of yellow fever (March 2, 1879). Rev. Joseph B. Stratton of Natchez writes to Markham thanking him for work done in his church and he discusses issues regarding the Presbyterian Church (November 6, 1890), and a letter and biographical data discuss the Reverend A. R. Graves (January 30, 1891). Also included is a report from a meeting of the Trustees of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church (undated).

A typewritten copy of the eulogy of Rev. Markham given by Dr. Palmer (March 1894) is included, as is a list of library holdings from Markham Memorial Library given to Lafayette Presbyterian Church (1894).

Series II, Sermons and Memoranda, 1850-1893

The bulk of the collection consists of Markham's sermons and notes concerning his church. These include lecture notes taken at Princeton Theological Seminary (1850-1855), numerous notebooks and loose paper containing sermons given at the Presbyterian Church at Vicksburg (1855-1856) and Lafayette Presbyterian Church at New Orleans (1857-1893). Visiting books for the Fulton Street Presbyterian Church of New Orleans are also included (1859, 1865) as are a large number of memorandum books containing notes for sermons and day-by-day accounts of Markham's social and church activities (1877-1892).

Series III, Printed items, 1794-1920

Two unidentified and undated photographs are included (Studios of W.W. Washburn, New Orleans, and Simon, New Orleans), as well as seven photographs of a Confederate monument being erected in Vicksburg, Mississippi (1920). A number of visiting cards, sympathy cards, and invitations are also included (undated).

The collection contains 38 anniversary programs for the Presbyterian Parochial Schools (1868-1895), programs pertaining to church functions (1868-1910), and excerpts from prayer books. A number of bound printed items are also included (see container list).

Series IV, Scrapbooks, 1861-1931

Four scrapbooks, most likely compiled by members of the Hodgson and McWhan families, contain clippings from New Orleans and Vicksburg newspapers of obituary notices of Reverend Markham, members of his family and congregation, and other articles on Confederate veteran and memorial organizations (1861-1931).

Series V, Hodgson Family Papers, 1859-1932

A letter from Joshua Beardman in Switzerland to his sister Estelle Hodgson in New Orleans discusses life in Geneva and plans an upcoming trip to Louisiana (August 24, 1867), and a letter to Mrs. Hodgson from John C. Potts describes an injury and his time in a hospital (January 6, 1869). A number of letters also discuss a property dispute involving the Hodgson, Dozier, and Chopin Families (June 9, 1876 and August 5, 1879). An article calling congregants to mourn Mrs. E.E. Hodgson was written shortly after her death on May 4, 1894.

A letter to Miss Hodgson from Laura Edward Monteith discussing the Confederate Memorial Association (August 29, 1904) is included, as are a Convention Call for the Louisiana Sunshine Society of which Miss Daisy M.L. Hodgson is organizer (March 19, 1910), and letters to Daisy Hodgson from the Sons of Confederate Veterans (March 6, 1930 and February 25, 1932).
