Biographical/Historical Note

Catherine Small Long was born in Dayton, Ohio, on February 7, 1924 to Sidney and Erma Sexton Small. She graduated from Camp Hill High School in Camp Hill, Pennsylvania. She earned a B. A. from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in 1948, and also attended Douglas College (Rutgers), in New Jersey; Union Junior College in Cranford, New Jersey; and Mt. Vernon College in Washington. Long served a tour of duty in the United States Navy as a pharmacist mate from 1944 to 1946.

At Louisiana State University Long met and married Gillis W. Long (U. S. Representative for Louisiana District 8, 1963-1965, 1973-1985) in 1947. She took an active role in her husband's six congressional and two gubernatorial campaigns by writing and making speeches, writing letters and advertising copy, participating in fund-raisers and door-to-door canvassing, making television and radio appearances and visiting local organizations and businesses.

In 1980 and 1984, Long was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention. She was also a member of the Louisiana State Democratic Financial Council, the Louisiana state central committee, and the Louisiana Democratic leadership council.

In 1985, Long was elected by special election to fill the vacancy caused by her husband's death during the Ninety-ninth Congress. In addition to being the first woman veteran to serve in Congress, she was also the seventh member of the Long family to be elected to Congress. She served as Representative from 1985-1987. While in office she focused on the issues of civil rights, poverty, and equal rights for women.

Long is the mother of two (George Harrison and Janis Catherine) and currently resides in Washington, D. C.
