BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Duncan Farrar Kenner was a member of the Louisiana Constitutional Conventions of 1845 and of 1852, a member of the Confederate Congress, and a Confederate special commissioner plenipotentiary to France in 1863.

A planter, he founded Ashland Plantation in Ascension Parish, Louisiana, and had interests in Bowdon, Houmas, Hollywood, Hermitage, Fashion, and Roseland plantations. With his brother-in-law, General Richard Taylor, Kenner held leases in the New Basin Canal in New Orleans. Kenner helped to organize the New Orleans Jockey Club and the New Louisiana Jockey Club.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Legal, financial, and personal papers pertain to Kenner's career as a planter and to his business activities and land holdings in Louisiana. Correspondence includes a letter from Duncan Kenner to relative William J. Minor concerning sugar production (1838), letters concerning the management of the New Basin Canal (1867-1870) with letters of Richard Taylor and James McCloskey, and letters regarding investments in New Orleans stocks, bonds, property, and horse racing in New Orleans. Other letters pertain to the settlement of estates, including that of Richard Taylor (1880), and investments in plantation and agricultural properties. A typescript of lists (1854, 1858) records Kenner's property, slaves he owned, and clothing issued to them at Ashland Plantation.

Financial papers include items related to sugar production in New Orleans, the building of a rice flume near Hollywood Plantation (1887), tax assessments and receipts, mercantile receipts, papers related to the sales and purchases of land, and weekly cash reports (January-May 1888) of proceeds from Kenner's plantations.

Political papers include items related to the victory of Isaac Johnson in the Louisiana gubernatorial election of 1842 and the defeat of Whig congressional candidates throughout the state and a tax receipt of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1868.

Legal documents include estate documents (with some account books) of Duncan F. Kenner, John Minor, Richard Taylor, Michel Doradou Bringier, and Mr. Aglae Bringier. A patent and other documents record the invention of a decortications machine by Duncan Kenner and Leonard Sewell (circa 1880-1889).

Maps show Kenner land holdings in New Orleans (circa 1870-1879). Printed materials include a broadside, listing passengers on the steamship "America" (1865), items related to the Tehuantepec Railway Company (circa 1882), and newspaper clippings.

Manuscript volumes (1887-1888, undated) relate to Kenner's estate.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series I. Documents and Correspondence, 1838-1894, 1905.

The earliest letters are addressed to William J. Minor of Natchez, Mississippi from G. Carrie Duncan concerning claims against the John Minor estate by the Kenner heirs (1838). Letters from Duncan F. Kenner propose the building of sugar mills and discussing the Democratic victory of Isaac Johnson in the gubernatorial election and the defeat of Whig congressional candidates throughout Louisiana (1846). Correspondence of Duncan F. Kenner with D.D. Withers relates to the sale of City of New Orleans bonds, the chartering of Metairie Cemetery and its effect upon the value of City of New Orleans stock (1872). Letters from New Orleans notaries concern property sales at public auctions and include one letter stating terms and conditions for these sales (1877), and another relating to the succession of Alexander Phillips (1877). A letter from St. Charles Parish sheriff to Kenner address the possibility of relieving the heirs of Richard Taylor from payment of overdue parish taxes on Fashion Plantation (1880) and a letter to Louise Taylor discuss the proceeds of the sale of the Plantation (1883). Legal correspondence, including letters to and from Joseph L. Brent, executor of the Duncan F. Kenner estate, discusses its settlement (1887). A letter from Thomas Plater of Nashville to Brent mentions Plater's appointment as guardian of young Duncan Kenner (D. F. Kenner's grandson) (1887) and is then followed by correspondence between Joseph L. Brent and Thomas Plater and between Plater and Mrs. D. F. Kenner concerning her grandson's share in the estate (1888-1889).

Financial documents such as property tax and mercantile receipts, a Constitutional Convention tax receipt (1868), promissory notes, stock certificates, statements of account and property assessment lists are included. Many documents relate to the succession of Duncan F. Kenner. They include lists of taxable property, statement of taxes due, an agreement concerning the sale of Hollywood and Hermitage plantations and financial interests in Houmas Plantation (1888) as well as an agreement as to the distribution of proceeds of crops from Kenner's plantations (1888). Statements from the Times-Democrat and Picayune of New Orleans are addressed to Joseph L. Brent for advertising the sale of the plantations (1889).

Most of the legal papers involve the settlement of estates, such as those of Alexander Phillips (1877) and Richard Taylor (1880). Documents such as property judgments and sales claims of title concern property sold to D. F. Kenner by Andrew Hero, Jr. in a tax sale (1876). Papers granting permission by the East Baton Rouge Police Jury to construct a rice flume on the Mississippi River levee below Hollywood Plantation are also included (1887). Other items relate to Kenner and Richard Taylor's interests in the New Canal and Basin in New Orleans (1867-1869).

Other papers include a prospectus of the Journal of Religious Education of the General Protestant Episcopal Sunday School Union (1838) and a slave list showing clothing issued to them at Ashland Plantation (1854-1858, typewritten copy). Official Confederate States of America documents include an Act of Congress for the issuance of a foreign loan (January 4, 1865, photocopy), certificates bearing the signature of Judah P. Benjamin, Secretary of State

(January 5, 1865, photocopies). Also signed by Benjamin are a letter (February 3, 1865; photocopy) and a postscript to an order for twenty-five thousand pounds of cotton in exchange for cotton bonds (November 14, 1864, access to original is restricted, use photocopy). Material also contains a printed drainage system report by the city surveyor, L. Surgi (1868). One map indicates the boundaries of Kenner property on St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans (1877) and another shows the form and dimensions of a property on Carondelet Street (1878). Finally, there is a biographical sketch of Joseph L. Brent (circa 1905).

Note: Notes and drafts of *Last Diplomatic Effort of the Southern Confederacy Represented by the Mission of the Hon. Duncan Farrar Kenner of Louisiana, Its High Commissioner, a short history by Joseph L. Brent (undated) are found in the Joseph L. Brent Papers, Mss. 1477, 1822 .

Series II. Newspaper Clippings, 1887, undated.

Newspaper clippings consist principally of obituaries (circa 1887) for Duncan F. Kenner while others relate to the New Canal (undated). One newspaper clipping is entitled "City of New Orleans vs. James Graham" (undated).

Series III. Manuscript Volumes, 1887-1888, undated.

Series contains bankbook (undated) that was issued by Canal Bank of New Orleans to the estate of D. F. Kenner and two executor's account books (1887-1888) regarding business of Kenner's estate.
