BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Ozémé Fontenot (1846-1928), son of Alexandre Fontenot and Hyacinthe Jaubert, was a planter and citizen of St. Landry Parish, Louisiana. In 1862, at the age of 16, he enlisted in the Confederate States Army, joining Company A, Second Louisiana Cavalry. His unit surrendered in Washington, Louisiana. After the war he returned to Grand Prairie, St. Landry Parish, and ran his mother's plantation, which he purchased in 1881.

After his 1865 marriage to Ernestine Debaillon, Fontenot fathered one child, Alma, who eventually wed Dr. James H. Parker of Ville Platte and produced a son, George H. Parker. Alma experienced chronic mental illness and was eventually divorced from James Parker in 1907. Ernestine Debaillon Fontenot died in 1887 at the age of 38.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Plantation and business records of Ozemé Fontenot and members of his family; his mother Hyacinthe Jaubert Fontenot; his sister Octavie David Fontenot of Houma; his daughter Alma and her husband, Dr. James H. Parker; and several nephews and planters, politicians, and businessmen in the area, including Samuel Hess and Leon Wolfe.

Personal and business correspondence concern family relationships, especially the marriage and divorce of the Parkers, and document Alma Fontenot Parker's mental illness and hospitalization. Other topics concern current political issues, mainly of local interest; finances and banking; health; travel; and United Confederate Veterans' pensions and reunions. Some letters describe lynchings and shootings of African Americans in Louisiana (1909, 1911) and trials of African Americans in Louisiana (1902, 1905).

Letters exchanged between Ozemé Fontenot and his son-in-law (James Parker) and grandson (George Parker) follow the latter's frequent moves from the South to the Midwest to the south of California, ending in George's eventual settling in Grand Prairie.

Cotton gin and farming record books span the years 1873 to 1921. Other manuscript volumes document the plantation economy from 1864 to 1928, including cash books, daybooks, and blacksmith account books (1880-1882). Also included are eight property census books recording personal property, newspaper clippings, and printed items.
